

Bringing Calm and Creativity into the Holiday Season

As the year winds down, Ambient Grounds is continuing its search for new spaces to host our community programs, from local schools to neighborhood gathering spots. Our mission remains simple: to make music a tool for relaxation, reflection, and connection.

We're looking for educators, community leaders, and organizers who would like to bring our hands-on music and sound exploration experiences to their classrooms, parks, or shared spaces. Whether it's helping students discover new creative outlets or offering adults a quiet moment of sonic calm, we're excited to share these experiences wherever they're needed most.

As the holidays approach, we're reminded that this season is about slowing down and reconnecting with ourselves, each other, and the world around us. Ambient Grounds is here to help make that connection through sound, creativity, and community.

If you'd like to collaborate or bring Ambient Grounds to your area, reach out anytime at connect@ambientgrounds.com.

Philip Smith

Founder and Executive Director of Ambient Grounds

Tune in, reach out.